The result of the Chicago city election has quite effectually spiked the "Quaker guns" of the opposition and municipal ownership of public utilities may be expected to have its day, not only in Chicago but throughout the land. This movement by the people and for the people should flourish. This is one of the ways that corporate power and trust domination may be properly stayed, and the benefits accrue to the people.

There are no better or brighter women in the world than the farmers' wives and daughters of Red Willow county. Their fame as housekeepers and as exponents of good cookery is more than state-wide, and they are especially quick to welcome new ideas from any source. A large element in the progress of many of our farm homes is the Home Department of The Iowa Homestead, of Des Moines, Iowa, which abounds in recipes, household hints, points in dressmaking, suggestions about beautifying the farm home and grounds and editorial chats with subscribers on timely topics. These admirable features and the weekly Sunday school lessons, in which many farmers' wives are deeply interested, make The Homestead a truly ideal paper for the farmer's wife and daughter. In increasing the circulation of farm journals of this character in our county THE TRIBUNE feels that it is rendering a real service to the farming public. If you would like to subscribe for The Homestead or see a sample copy of it, we shall be pleased to attend to the matter for you.

RURAL FREE DELIVERY ROUTE NO. 1.
Miss Laura Neumann is home from Collegeview.

The Joseph Dudek bridge is being re-floored, this week, with planks.

The basket social in East McCook will be held at the home of Mrs. J. M. Hamilton, and the date has been changed to May 5th.

Rev. Harry Shepherd was down from Max, Sunday, to visit the family in East McCook, and preached in the school house, Sunday evening. He also spoke after Sunday-school in the afternoon.

Henry Hoffman, Jr., of the Ask Creek neighborhood is getting materials on the ground for a fine new dwelling house. The dimensions are given as 18x32, with an addition 26x18. Residence is to be two stories high, equipped with furnace and other modern improvements.

Henry Goedtel's baby had the narrowest escape from death, last Saturday, in falling into the water trough. The little one is about two years old. When discovered in the water the child was apparently dead. The frantic mother and hired girl made vigorous efforts to revive the little one, but apparently without success. The mother then went to the field to call Mr. Goedtel. When the parents returned to the home the hired girl had partially succeeded in restoring the child to life. Later a physician arrived and the recovery was made complete.

Good Health to the Children

Children especially are fond of dainties, and the housekeeper must look carefully to their food.

As good cake can be made only with good eggs, so also a cake that is healthful as well as dainty must be raised with a pure and perfect baking powder.

Royal Baking Powder is indispensable in the preparation of the highest quality of food. It imparts that peculiar lightness, sweetness and flavor noticed in the finest cake, biscuit, doughnuts, crusts, etc., and what is more important, renders the food wholesome and agreeable to young and old.

SPENDTHRIFT BALZAC.

Extravagance of the Man Who Had a Mountain of Debts.

"With Balzac's rising fame rises the mountain of his debts," writes a critic. "These, starting from his two disastrous years of printing and publishing in Paris, accumulated until at the top of his literary renown he had to hide from his creditors in a garret under the name of his landlady or his washerwoman. In 1837 Balzac, at that date the best known and the most debated novelist in France, owed 162,000 francs, about $32,500. Then he must needs buy a cane which was the talk of Paris, some gold buttons for a new coat, a 'divine opera glass' and a dressing gown beyond words and give a dinner to the dandies of the opera respecting which Rossini said that 'he had not seen more magnificence when he dined at royal tables.'"

"Balzac three times a millionaire would still have buried himself in debt, for the mental exaltation of his creative hours was reproduced when he broke loose from the galley bench. He lavished in anticipation the wealth he had dreamed would be his. This gone, he borrowed anew or devised another of those schemes that were to enrich him beyond the possibilities of literature. His schemes were essentially a part of Balzac, the sovereign, unconquerable visionary.

"He would transport oaks from Poland to France; nothing like oaks from Poland to make your fortune three times over! Behold him again gravely working out his plan to make a corner in all the arts and putting up the Apollo Belvedere for competition among the nations—to act as auctioneer to Europe—the 'child man,' as his devoted sister, Mme. Surville, used to call him."

CHAINED BOOKS.

The Custom at One Time Extended to Lincoln's Inn, London.

When one looks in bookshop windows nowadays and contemplates the bewildering abundance of volumes of all kinds of literature offered at the low price of $1.50 or less he finds it difficult to realize that time was when a Bible cost as much as $10,000 in our present money. No wonder it was kept chained in churches. The Black Books of Lincoln's Inn, London, show that this practice of chaining obtained there. There is an entry during the reign of King James I. "that decent stools be provided and that moveable desks be also made and chains for the book," and a few years later the inn payments include 20 shillings for twenty dozen of chains and rings for the library, and there is a fresh order made that "all considerable books be chained."

It appears that none of the existing books in the library retain their chains or any part of them, but a considerable number—about forty—still have riveted to the binding the ring or hasp by which the chain was attached, and many more show the mark left by rings now removed.

The "moveable desk" and the "decent stool" were essential appurtenances of a chained library of any size. Even the zeal of a medieval student was not equal to holding a chained folio. In the accounts of the Middle Temple "chains for the books of the library" is a constantly recurring item, and a reader in Gray's Inn in bequeathing his library gives 40 shillings to the intent that he—the trustee—"made by charynes fasten so many of them in the library at Gray's Inn as he shall think convenient."

Mrs. Gummidge.

We have her with us always. Her nose droops, her mouth turns down at the corners, her complexion is generally sallow, her eyes lusterless, and when small tribulation or great calamity happens to the family she "feels it more than the others." Wonderful is Dickens' delineation of Mrs. Gummidge, whom little Davy found such treasure trove for his interested observation; who, when the chimney smoked or the potatoes failed, wept silently, because, forsooth, "I feels it more than others." She is the girl at school who forever is having her feelings hurt. "Very sensitive," say her friends; "very self-conscious," sniff her critics.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Paris Court Trials.

The demand for seats at a Paris court trial is utilized by the poor to turn an honest franc. The courtrooms usually admit of but forty visitors other than the regular court officers. It is common for a crowd to collect in front of the court many hours before the door is open and wait patiently in line. Just before the trial begins, when the doors are open, these men, who have perhaps been standing all night in the rain, are glad to sell their places for a few francs.

Her Conclusion.

"I've got my opinion of a woman that can't cook," growled William De Kikku, glaring at his better half. "I suppose that if our cook would get married I'd starve to death!" "You needn't worry about that, William," said Mrs. De K. gently. "Our cook has been married once, and I don't consider it at all likely that she would care to."

But her irate spouse had slammed the door behind him.—Cleveland Leader.

Hourglass Waists.

"Doctor," said a fashionable belle, "what do you think of tight lacing?" The doctor solemnly replied, "Madam, all I can say is that the more a woman's waist is shaped like an hourglass the sooner will her sands of life run out."

The head of a theological school once said, "I've seen so many fools succeed and so many geniuses come to nothing that I have ceased to prophesy."—Christian Register.

DANBURY.

Mrs. Wycoff is on the sick list. Sims & Newman had two cars of cattle on the Kansas City market Tuesday.

Mrs. Shorey and Mrs. Agor of Wilsonville are visiting relatives of this place. Jake Pearson and wife of German town, Neb., are visiting friends of this place.

Miss Maude Eno of McCook is visiting friends and relatives of this place, this week.

Miss Mary Greenway, who was teaching school in Kansas, is home for the summer.

Quite a number of young folks of Lebanon attended the Endeavor meeting at the Congregational church, Sunday night.

William Henton shipped six car loads of cattle, Gene Dolph four cars of sheep and J. L. Sims three cars of hogs to St. Joe, Sunday night.

The young people of this place had a basket supper at the town hall, Friday night. Twenty-one dollars were cleared and it went for the benefit of the Congregational church.

A. C. Furman has sold the Danbury News plant, house and two lots to J. L. Sims for $2,000. Furman expects to dispose of his barber outfit and to locate in Colorado Springs. Sorry to lose the estimable family.

If a Cow gave Butter mankind would have to invent milk. Milk is Nature's emulsion—butter put in shape for digestion. Cod liver oil is extremely nourishing, but it has to be emulsified before we can digest it.

Scott's Emulsion

combines the best oil with the valuable hypophosphites so that it is easy to digest and does far more good than the oil alone could. That makes Scott's Emulsion the most strengthening, nourishing food—medicine in the world.
